

Pasteur Pipette

Pasteurpipette

---

Georg-August-Universität Göttingen

Pasteur Pipette

Pasteur pipettes are used to transfer small volumes of liquid.

They are typically tapered small glass tubes and hold a volume of 2 mL.

The liquid is sucked up and released (also dropwise) with the help of a suction cup.

Pipettes must always be held vertically and the solution only transferred short distances.

If not held vertically, the solution could move into the suction cup and contaminate it.

